MORSE'S DESIRE TO DIE AT HOME LIVELY BUSINESS MAY BE DENIED IN RAILWAY SHARES, Banker's "Uness So Critical He Will Not Be Moved At Present.

(Continued from First Page.) which the warden placed before him. Then the warden delivered to him an envelope containing $8 in currency and a few trinkets and valuables that had oeen taken in charge at the prison when Morse was received there. Morse held the pen in his left hand when he signed. His right side was said to be signed. His right side was said to be partially paralyzed.

The little formality over, Mr. Morse still showed no emotions. The nurses lowered him again upon the bed.

"Congratulations, Mr. Morse," said Frank Rogers, head clerk at the prison, who had accompanied Mr. Moyer.

Guard is Removed. "Thank you," was the patient's only answer, in a dull voice as he lay in seeming exhaustion upon the cot. Walking to the station of the guard in unim, and returning his salute, Warden Moyer said to him: "Crawford, your duty here is ended. You can return with me to the prison."

Morse seemed hardly to realize or appreciate the change in his fortune.

It is said to be probable that the four army nurses, sent to Atlanta under special assignment from Washington to attend Morse, will be kept at his bedside until the sick man is removed from Fort McPherson.

Question of Pay Raised. The question was raised today as to the payment of Morse's expenses while he remains in the army hospital at Fort McPherson, Ga. The Department of Justice formally announced it would no longer be responsible for the expenses of the fermer convict, and that it ses of the former convict, and that it was up to the Medical Corps of the army to adjust the matter.

At the office of the surgeon general of the army, however, it was learned that specific regulations of the army hear upon this point. Morse, under these regulations, will be compelled to pay $1.25 for each day he remains in the hospital.

The regulations say that any civilian who may be taken into an army hospital under an omergency, may be given treatment there provided he pays this amount. Therefore, Morse, who from today on has the status of a civilian, will be required to pay the amount named.

Mrs. Morse Swoons With Joy When News

Just five minutes before 6 o'clock last night, President Taft directed the White Wash, House telephone operator to get Mrs. Charles W. Morse on the telephone. No sooner had the word been passed than telephone bells were ringing wildly. Mrs. Morse was located at the Congress Hall Hotel, but at the minute she was talking in a booth to a friend in

White House speaking.
"I am directed by the President to inferm you," the voice went on saying, "that he has just signed the warrant which commutes the sentence of your hyshand, now in jail at Atlanta, Ga."

Swoons With Joy.

Descrite the fact that Mrs. Morse was expecting the glad news, and regardless of the assurances which the White House had been holding out to her all day, she fell against the sides of the booth overcome with joy. She of the booth overcome with joy. She could hardly grasp it all.

In a minute, however, the tireless woman who has worked for more than three years for the release of her husband recovered herself. She urged the telephone operator of the White House to express her gratitude to the President, to the Attorney General, to the surgeon general, to each and every one who had any part, large or small, in obtaining the release of her husband. Giving herself time to comprehend what it all meant, Mrs. Morse finally emerged from the telephone booth radiant. She told everybody she met that Mr. Morse had been given his freedom. She stopped people whom she had never seen before to tell them of her joy over winning the battle she has waged.

Hurriedly Packs Up.

Then came the feverish efforts to get her things packed, and to get to the train which was to take her to Atlanta. At 10 o'clock she was off, and bearing with her the papers which will finally remove the oppression from the mind of the sick man.

Delayed Action. President Taft did not commute the sentence of Morse until he had become fully convinced that there was no possible hope for him. The signing of th warrant came late yesterday afternoon, when Attorney General Wickersham called at the White House and had a called at the White House and had a long talk with the President.

Earlier in the day the commutation had been practically decided upon. Pardon Attorney Finch had called at the Executive Offices with a warrant for Morse's release made out and ready for the President's signature. Not satisfied, however, to act immediately, the President put off the act itself until the last thing he did during the day.

At 6:45 o'clock the word was passed out at the White House that a statement on Morse would be issued in a few more misutes. In less than half an hour thereafter the statement was issued, giving the President's reasons for commuting the banker's sentence, to expire immediately.

Senator Williams Wants More Teachers

Senator Williams of Mississippi has introduced an amendment to the Dis-trict bill increasing the number of teachers in group A, class six, to 280. Teachers of this class receive a minimum salary of $1,000 and longevity pay $100 a year.

The bill now provides for 216 teachers of this class. The Board of Education recommended 226 and the District Commissioners 223. Senator Williams' purpose in making the number 280 is to put all teachers in the normal, high and manual training schools in group A.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The drop in values at the close yesterday gave the shorts a chance to turn some of their trades into profits, and they were on hand soon after the opening, endeavoring to take advantage of the opening. A slight weakness checked their desire, but this opening weakness was immediately succeeded by better tone and moderate advances along the list. The shorts then covered and bid the market upon themselves.

The gains were nowhere important, save in the Hill stocks, which for some reason were in excellent demand and given a point to a little larger gain. A warm wave was given as an excuse for this rise, but it is too soon to talk about the end of the winter, and especially of the Minnesota and Dakota winter. The more probable theory was that these stocks had been selected to give not good market leaders, for they imparted none of their strength elsewhere.

No Proof Found of Plot

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 19.-The police have been unable to find any evidence that will substantiate the statement made by friends of Governor Foss that a plot to assassinate him exists. The declaration that members of the Italian Black Hand organization had been sent from New York to kill Governor Foss because he ordered troops into Lawrence to combat the striking mill hands there has not been substantiated.

Leaders of the Lawrence strikers de-nounce the statement a sa "malicious lie designed to prevent the public from sympathizing with the strikers' cause and to aid the mill owners to get addi-tional troops into the district." Special police were still on duty today about the Foss residence and in the corridors of the capitol.
